In 2014, the Foundation awarded three types of scholarships in conjunction with third parties. One scholarship, the intern excellence scholarship, called for nominations from the interns' job site mentors. Mentors completed a nomination form, highlighting the intern's achievements during the internship, and submitted the form to the regional Foundation program teams, which reviewed all nomination forms and selected the scholarship recipient(s). The second scholarship was offered in conjunction with Hands on DC; any Foundation intern, who volunteered for a day of community service with Hands on DC was eligible to submit an application, which included an essay. All applicants were invited to an in-person interview with representatives from both the Foundation and Hands on DC; following the interview, the Foundation's staff members selected the scholarship recipients. The third scholarship is sponsored by Muriel Maignan-Wilkins and is open to all DC interns who must apply and provide an essay. The Foundation's staff accumulated applications and sent them to Mrs. Wilkins for her review. Mrs. Wilkins determines the number and amount of scholarship winners.

The scholarships provided by the Foundation were paid directly to the institution of higher learning and were typically applied to tuition expenses for the intern's first semester of college. The Foundation's Alumni Services team conducted periodic check-ins to determine the college persistence of the program's alumni.

Once the audit is complete, the audit staff of Raffa, P.C. provides audited financial data to the tax department at Raffa, P.C. who prepares a draft copy of the federal Form 990.
